

GIBSON '70s EXPLORER - CLASSIC WHITE

2.490,00 € tax included

Reference: GIDSXS00CWCH1

GIBSON '70s EXPLORER - CLASSIC WHITE

GIBSON '70s EXPLORER - CLASSIC WHITE

The Gibson Explorer was released alongside the Flying V in the late 1950s to mixed reaction. It rewrote the design rulebook for the electric guitar, but many saw it as too radical - fast forward to the 21st Century, and this incredible instrument still turns heads and divides opinion. The '70s Explorer features a number of design tweaks that strike the balance between old-school and precision.

The body is solid Mahogany, and as with a lot of Gibson's core models, it boasts luxurious resonance and weighty low-end emphasis. The neck is also Mahogany, and has a 24.75" scale length with a Slim Taper profile - comfortable territory for any player.

A bound Rosewood fretboard with acrylic dot inlays offers smooth playability and a classic look that perfectly complements the Classic White finish.

Uncovered '70s Tribute Humbuckers offer heaps of the gutsy tone you'd expect from a classic Explorer.